6 Steps for Stronger IP Portfolios

IP Professionals make hundreds of decisions per month and too often feel like they're flying blind, without enough decision support on the value of patents. Budgets are tight, and there is zero tolerance for allowing truly valuable patent assets to fall into the public domain, but less money to protect and maintain. This presentation will discuss 6 best practices for assessing and strengthening your IP portfolios successfully in an ever-evolving environment.

The Impact of USPTO Changes to AIA Proceedings: Comparing Key PTAB Statistics on Outcomes by Technology Sector

Monday, September 19, 11:00am-12:00pm PT

Over the past several years, some patent owners have argued that Patent Trial and Appeal Board (PTAB) AIA proceedings are unfair, and the USPTO has responded to concerns about balance by issuing guidance, precedential decisions, and rules. Today AIA fillings remain strong, and the PTAB remains the most popular forum for challenging patent claims. While the USPTO publishes overall statistics demonstrating drops in institution rates, very little technology-specific data exists, particularly how specific technology areas fare compared to the overall statistics or other technologies. This session will explore the changes to AIA proceedings and how they have impacted outcomes. The session also will dive into how changes to procedures, guidance, and rule shave impacted individual technology sectors and outcomes in different industries – including variations from technology to technology. Related topics that will addressed will be the change in USPTO leadership and the effect of discretionary denials on PTAB practice and related litigation.

Patent and Trademark Case Law Update

Monday, September 19, 1:00pm-2:00pm PT

The US Supreme Court, the US Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and district courts have authored several opinions in 2022 reshaping, and in some cases clarifying, patent and trademark law. Speakers will provide key takeaways from these decisions and comment on cases to watch.

Organizing Committee: Amicus Brief

Speakers:

Paul Berghoff, McDonnell Boehnen Hulbert Berghoff LLP Gregory Castanias, Jones Day Wendy Larson, Pirkey Barber PLLC

Hold on to Your Trade Secrets: The Winds of Change Are Howling Around Employee Non-Compete Agreements

Monday, September 19, 2:45pm-3:45pm PT

There is a growing tension between employee mobility, specifically the enforceability of non-compete and non-disclosure agreements post-employment, and strong trade secret protection, both of which intended to promote innovation and stimulate the US economy. This session will explore this tension and whether the focus on employee mobility is eroding trade secret protection in light of recent developments such as (1) President Biden's July 2021 Executive Order directing the Federal Trade Commission to consider issuing rules "to curtail the unfair use of non-compete clauses and other clauses or agreements that may unfairly limit worker mobility," (2) the Uniform Law Commission's newly proposed Uniform Restrictive Employment Agreements Act for possible adoption by states, and (3) various state laws and proposed legislation promoting employee mobility. Panelists will also explore steps trade secret owners can take in anticipation of recent and potential legislation favoring employee mobility.

Organizing Committee: Trade Secrets

Speakers:

Russell Beck, Beck Reed Riden LLP Nicholas Clifford, Tucker Ellis LLP Robert Isackson, Leason Ellis LLP Dawn Mertineit, Seyfarth Shaw

A New Age: The USPTO Move to DOCX and Patent Center

Monday, September 19, 4:30pm-5:30pm PT

Patent Center, which currently is being rolled out by the USPTO, will soon become the platform for all patent-related submissions. Panelists will discuss what Patent Center is, the platforms being replaced, and the various features of Patent Center. Panelists will discuss the new DOCX patent filing requirements, the related pros and cons, and offer best practice tips associated with DOCX filings.

Organizing Committee: US Patent Office Practice

Moderator: Ron Ventola, Panitch Schwarze Belisarios & Nadel LLP

Speakers:

David Easwaran, Womble Bond Dickinson LLP Kevin Hawkes, Adam R. Stephenson, LTD. Rick Seidel, US Patent and Trademark Office Mary VanAtten, Bristol Myers Squibb Company

PTAB Intersection with Patent Litigation: Year in Review

Tuesday, September 20, 8:00am-9:00am PT

This session will provide an overview of recent trends at the intersection of post-grant proceedings and federal patent litigation. Decisions in the Federal Circuit and the PTAB in the past year require parties challenging the validity of a patent to reconsider their strategies. Panelists will discuss issues such as where to bring prior art challenges and treatment of co-pending proceedings.

Organizing Committees: Patent Litigation & Remedies and US Post-Grant Patent Office Practice

Speakers:

Why IP Owners Should Pay Attention to Data Legislation

Tuesday, September 20, 9:30am-10:30am PT

Data governance is one of the most widely discussed topics today. As the world embraces advanced digital technologies such as machine learning and artificial intelligence governments are examining current legal frameworks, the need for property protection systems, and harmonized rules on fair access to and use of data. Data laws vary around the world. In the US, although there is no general federal law covering data privacy, five states have enacted comprehensive consumer data privacy laws. In India, the Personal Data Protection Bill is likely to be replaced with a new National Data Governance Framework policy. While the EU has no separate IP right for data, the European Commission recently adopted the Data Governance Act and proposed the Data Act. Panelists will discuss the legal frameworks governing data and how they impact IP rights globally.

Organizing Committees: European Practice and Trade Secrets

Speakers:

Benjamin Herbert, Kirkland & Ellis LLP Nick Aries, Bird & Bird Ken Corsello, IBM Corp.

Utilizing Open Source Software in FRAND-Based Standards Development

Tuesday, September 20, 11:00am-12:00pm PT

A frequent point of conversation has been the use of the open source development model by standards development organizations in the context of standards development and associated software projects. This is motivated, in part, by the desire to leverage the benefits of open source development and its record of successes. This session will address key traits of the two development models and high-level license-related considerations when merging open source and FRAND-based standards development models.

Organizing Committee: IP Licensing & Related Issues

Moderator: Jennifer Carnahan, Dow Chemical Co.

Speakers:

Sean Evans, Dell Technologies Michele Herman, JusTech Law Jeff Kettle, Qualcomm Incorporated

Protecting and Enforcing Trade Secret Rights in China

Tuesday, September 20, 1:00pm-2:00pm PT

This session will provide an overview of current Chinese trade secret law. Panelists will also discuss recent court decisions involving trade secrets and offer tips on the protection of trade secrets and enforcement of trade secret rights in China.

Organizing Committees: Asian Practice and Trade Secrets

Moderator: Robert Siminski, Harness IP

Speakers: William McCabe, Perkins Coie, LLP Jerry Xia, GEN Law Firm

Qinghong Xu, Lung Tin Intellectual Property Agent Ltd.

The Evolution of the Written Description and Enablement Requirements

Tuesday, September 20, 2:30pm-3:30pm PT

As technologies develop, has the scope of technology patents changed? In the past, technology patent claims were granted broad scope. More recently, the Federal Circuit has used the written description and enablement requirements to narrow the scope of technology patents across multiple fields. Panelists will discuss the evolution of the Federal Circuit's application of the written description and enablement requirements and look to the future of how written description and enablement may be used to limit claim scope in ways unforeseen to the patent drafter.

Organizing Committees: US Patent Law

Moderator: Laura Donnelly, Johnson & Johnson

Speakers:

Prof. Dennis Crouch, University of Missouri School of Law Henry Hadad, Bristol-Myers Squibb Company Eldora Ellison, Sterne Kessler Goldstein & Fox

Ethics Issues in IP: Transactions, Prosecution, and Litigation

Tuesday, September 20, 4:00pm-5:00pm PT

This program covers the common ethics issues that IP attorneys confront on a regular basis. Topics include:

- New rules and key opinions
- Confidentiality and privilege in IP cases, including issues arising from protective order violations
- Duty of loyalty and conflict issues
- Duties related to candor to the USPTO and courts
- Duties regarding third parties
- USPTO OED rule changes and disciplinary decisions

Speakers:

Michelle Galloway, Cooley, LLP Eric Prager, Venable LLP

Protecting Al-Related Inventions: Best Practices and Impacts on Life Sciences and Software Related Technologies

Monday, September 19, 2:45pm-3:45pm PT

Artificial Intelligence (AI) has quickly emerged at the forefront of a fourth industrial revolution that is fundamentally changing the way we live, work, and interact with the environment around us. As AI grows in sophistication and power, questions have emerged about how innovations derived by AI programs should be treated and protected. Panelists will discuss the risks and opportunities afforded by AI-derived innovations, whether AI should be listable as in inventor on patents, and the patenting process as it relates to AI. Panelists will also explore best practices for preparing, prosecuting, asserting, and licensing AI-related inventions in the US, Europe, and China with emphasis on life sciences and software related technologies.

Organizing Committees: Al & New Emerging Technologies, Asian Practice, Pharmaceutical & Biotechnology, and Software Related Inventions

Speakers: Sumon Dasgupta, Jordan IP Law, LLC David Kincaid, Cantor Colburn LLP Eric Lin, Genentech Laura Sheridan, Google LLC

Artificial Intelligence as Author and Inventor

Monday, September 19, 4:30pm-5:30pm PT

Artificial intelligence (AI) is constantly being applied to new fields and commercial endeavors. Yet IP law concerning the protection of AI-created works and inventions is still developing. This session will provide an update on how the courts and IP offices (both patent and copyright) around the world have considered whether AI-generated inventions are patentable and AI-generated works are copyrightable, and if so, who owns them. It also will give participants a better understanding of how existing rules governing inventorship and authorship may be applied to future fact patterns, particularly inventions and works that are created with modest human involvement.

Organizing Committees: AI & New Emerging Technologies and Copyright & Related Rights

Strategic Open Source and IP Considerations for Al Innovations

Tuesday, September 20, 9:30am-10:30am PT

The field of Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning (Al/ML) is saturated with open source projects. Most Al/ML innovation is likely to interact with open source in one or more ways. This session will provide an overview of open source through an Al/ML lens, including some of the popular licenses and major Al/ML projects, as well as different release models. Panelists will address options, open questions, and business considerations that drive the strategy for protecting your Al/ML innovation. They will also focus on the difficulties of balancing open source, trade secrets, and patents.

Al at the Patent Offices

Tuesday, September 20, 1:00pm-2:00pm PT

Artificial Intelligence has impacted Patent Offices around the world in a variety of ways. On one hand, AI has increased burdens on the Offices due both to the raw numbers of AI-related patent applications and to the breadth of fields to which AI-related technologies are applicable. On the other hand, AI has begun to reduce burdens on the Offices due to the operational efficiencies it can produce. Patent Offices around the world have taken on the challenge of examining a wide variety of AI-related applications while also embracing the technology for their own use in translations, classification, and other areas. This session will address the current state of usage of AI in the various Patent Offices. Panelists will discuss whether AI-enabled examination is in our future and whether AI technology can reduce or eliminate the IDS burden. They will also discuss treatment and examination of AI-related patent applications from one Office to another.

Patent and Trademark Case Law Update

Monday, September 19, 1:00pm-2:00pm PT

The US Supreme Court, the US Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and district courts have authored several opinions in 2022 reshaping, and in some cases clarifying, patent and trademark law. Speakers will provide key takeaways from these decisions and comment on cases to watch.

TMI on the TMA: Everything You Need to Know About Trademark Modernization Act Implementation in Action

Monday, September 19, 2:45pm-3:45pm PT

In December 2021, the Trademark Modernization Act (TMA) created ex parte and inter partes nonuse cancellation proceedings to clear the US Federal Register of unused or inappropriately registered trademarks. In December 2022, the USPTO will implement flexible, shorter response periods for most office actions. This session will address best practices for filing expungement and reexamination proceedings, as well as actual data on petitions filed, instituted, and terminated to date. Speakers will analyze when it is appropriate to file an ex parte petition as opposed to a petition to cancel before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (TTAB), and strategies for nonuse-based cancellation proceedings before the TTAB. The panel will also discuss how brand owners can begin preparing for flexible office action response periods now to ease the transition in December.

Design Rights and Trade Dress: Maximizing Your IP Strategy

Monday, September 19, 4:30pm-5:30pm PT

A product can have many different market differentiators. Some are protectable with both design rights and trade dress, while others can be protected using only one of these forms of intellectual property. What are the boundaries and differences in each type of protection, especially in view of recent trade dress cases that came before the US Supreme Court? Which form of protection should you use in a given scenario? And when should you use both? Panelists will evaluate protection strategies for hypothetical articles and advantages and disadvantages of design versus trademark protection in different enforcement scenarios.

Artificial Intelligence as Author and Inventor

Monday, September 19, 4:30pm-5:30pm PT

Al is constantly being applied to new fields and commercial endeavors. Yet IP law concerning the protection of Al-created works and inventions is still developing. This session will provide an update on how the courts and IP offices (both patent and copyright) around the world have considered whether Al-generated inventions are patentable and Al-generated works are copyrightable, and if so, who owns them. It also will give participants a better understanding of how existing rules governing inventorship and authorship may be applied to future fact patterns, particularly inventions and works that are created with modest human involvement.

Form vs. Function: Protecting IP in GUIs and Software Design

Tuesday, September 20, 11:00am-12:00pm PT

There's an app for everything. From electronics to mechanics, software applications provide insight and control into all aspects of modern life. As software continues to proliferate, driving improvements in the physical world and opening new virtual worlds for human interaction, protecting it has become more difficult. This session will provide an overview of the various IP protection strategies that can apply to software interfaces (GUIs). Panelists will discuss how strategies interrelate, how they differ, and how the degree of functionality associated with the interface impacts the available type(s) of protection. Focusing on issues related to functionality, the panelists will explore how too little, or too much, functionality affects options for IP protection.

Copyright Best Practices and Trends Around the World

Tuesday, September 20, 2:30pm-3:30pm PT

The Berne Convention deals with the copyright protection of works and the rights of their authors. Most countries are members of the Berne Convention, which means they have certain commonalities in the copyright protections they provide, but there are still significant differences in the copyright laws around the world. This session will compare copyright laws around the world, with a focus on how different countries approach copyright enforcement on the Internet. Panelists will discuss how the EU Directive on Copyright in the Digital Single Market is being implemented in EU countries and how Canada, Australia, and other jurisdictions have likewise updated their copyright laws, including changes under consideration in the US.

Clash of the Titans: IP vs Right to Repair

Monday, September 19, 1:00pm-2:00pm PT

Right to Repair advocates claim that they have a right to repair anything they own and that they have a right to use it, modify it, and repair it whenever, wherever, and however they want. But these "rights" often clash with intellectual property rights. Panelists will explore the tension between a right to repair and the interests of IP owners. They will also review what statutory measures are currently being undertaken at the state and federal levels in support of the right to repair.

Design Patent Battlegrounds in the US

Tuesday, September 20, 2:30pm-3:30pm PT

Recent case law has sparked debate related to various design law jurisprudence. Is a design limited by the recited article? Can a would-be infringer avoid liability by simply applying trademarks or other branding to the product? Historically no, but recent Federal Circuit holdings have taken a 180 degree turn, and without thoughtful filing strategies, applicants may be surprised when trying to enforce their design rights. Panelists will review these cases, including In re Surgisil and Columbia Sportswear North America, Inc., v. Seirus Innovative Accessories, Inc., and discuss their implications, how applicants can avoid unintentionally limiting rights, and what may be on the horizon.

Leadership Lessons from TED

Sunday, September 18, 5:00pm-6:00pm PT

What do Teddy Roosevelt, Ted Koppel, Ted Lasso, various TED talks, and other great (and perhaps some less great) "TEDs" have in common? It's not just their name. Relying on the inspirational words and actions of "TEDs," a panel of IP leaders will address how leadership styles are actively evolving, moving from the old coercion style toward a more inclusive collaborative style that displays empathy and vulnerability. Panelists will share their views of the most effective leadership styles and how to best tailor styles for different situations and people. By the end of the session, attendees will have something in common, too—a better understanding of when, how, and why to hone their leadership styles.

KPIs for Effective Corporate IP Management and Operations in a Shifting World

Monday, September 19, 9:15am-10:15am PT

Leveraging Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) is a beneficial tactic for effectively managing a corporate IP department in a shifting world. Whether to understand the measure of work in progress for the department, managing the patent life cycle, or achieving more accurate budget predictions, appropriate KPIs are the foundation for reaching actionable IP analytics, particularly in a dynamic business environment. IPO's Corporate IP Management and Operations Committee has developed a KPI Reference Guide that breaks KPIs into categories for effective IP management. Panelists will share best practices and insights from the KPI Reference Guide.
