Firms join IPO to grow their business, and remain involved to maintain connections. Join IPO and find out what you are missing.

I encourage my entire IP team to take advantage of all that IPO has to offer. I know first-hand how participating in IPO supports the development of a diverse pipeline of leaders in IP."

SHELL USA, INC.

Committees and Resource Groups

Develop relationships with fellow professionals—including corporate in-house counsel—and demonstrate proficiency in your practice areas. IPO has dozens of active committees and resource groups working on the most important areas of IP law and practice. Please see the last page for a list.

As an IPO law firm member, your team can work directly with our corporate members to publish reports and develop IPO's policies and positions on key issues. Members can submit items for publication in a variety of newsletters and the IPO Law Journal. Vice-chair positions are usually reserved for law firm members.

Actively participating in IPO committees can also lead to additional opportunities and connections; speakers and presenters for our conferences and webinars are selected from IPO's membership. You can be considered to represent IPO at international meetings.

IPO committees help trainees and junior associates accelerate their careers through collaborative networking, skill-building, and hands-on policy work. Members gain visibility and can earn leadership opportunities. This helps your firm identify emerging talent and provide meaningful, low-cost professional development.
